Al Kaline, or as many know him as Mr. Tiger, had an all-time historic year in 1955. At just the young age of 20, Mr. Tiger had untouchable stats with a .340 batting average, 200 hits, and 27 homeruns. His .340 batting average was a whopping 21 points higher than 2nd place leaving no doubt he’d take the batting champion crown home. He was only one day younger than the previous winner who was also a Detroit Tiger, Ty Cobb. Kaline has currently held the record for over 60 years now. His all-time great performances during his career led him to make 15 All-Star teams, the most out of any Detroit Tiger’s player ever.
